

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An aspect of the present invention provides simulation that includes dividing a surface of a substrate onto which light that is focused at an aperture angle by a projection lens is shone into a first region onto which all of the light strikes and a second region onto which a portion of the light strikes, calculating an intensity of the light shone onto the first region, and calculating an intensity of the light shone onto the second region.

10